MUST BEGIN FROM BOTTOM OF LADDER

SAYS W. C. PIERCE IN SPECIAL ARTICLE TODAY.

HARD WORK NECESSARY

Young Man Should Look Over Field Carefully and Then Decide What Direction Talents Lead Him.

"Every line of legitimate business—open wide the gates of opportunity to every young man who has a good mind, a high school education, and who is honest, faithful, obedient, and, above all, not afraid to work," says W. C. Pierce in a special article today dealing with the selection of a life's work.

This is the sixth of a special series of articles by Maryville business and professional men dealing with their particular vocations, and surveying the field and opportunities of each.

W. C. Pierce, who, himself, began at the bottom of the ladder and climbed to a success in the banking and political world, is well able to advise the young men and young women about to be graduated from the high schools and colleges.

In his article today, Mr. Pierce says:

You ask the opportunities that banking offers the young man. Every line of legitimate business ,mercantile, manufacturing, and all others, and the professions, medicine, surgery, and the law, open wide the gates of opportunity to every young man who has a good mind, a high school education, and who is honest, faithful, obedient, and, above all, not afraid to work.

In my opinion, no particular business or profession offers any particular advantages one over the other to the young man who is equipped with a high school education and who has not the foolish notion that the world owes him a living. It is conceded that some are, by nature and their minds' trend, equipped for some particular line, and a young man choosing, so far as he is able to choose his life's work, should give it serious thought.

This ladder of fame is a queer vehicle. I have never viewed it except from near the bottom, but the bottom rounds are fairly easy to climb when one applies energy, pluck and determination, and the rounds on up are not treacherous when approached from the bottom side. But most of those who have attempted to travel the ladder from the top to the bottom have found it slick, slimy, and treacherous, and the descent swift and vicious.

If I were to advise the young man it would be to look over the field carefully and decide for himself in what direction his talents lead him and then, with no thought other than to commence at the bottom, strive by faithful application and untiring energy to ascend, and the future will treat him kindly.

Mayor Garrett said this morning that he would have extra men on duty besides the regular street cleaning force to see that all rubbish is carried off tomorrow and that there would also be men in the employee of the city at the dumping grounds to take care of everything that is brought out there. He has asked that no decayed vegetable matter or dead animals be placed on the parkways as it will not be collected, or if any such matter is hauled to the dumping grounds it will not be accepted.

L. H. Brownfield, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, requested the following members of the American Legion to assist Captain Phares this afternoon to aid in the clean-up activities:

CANDIDATES FORM ANTI-KLAN COMBINE

CLOSE WORKING AGREEMENT IS EXISTING.

IS AIMED AT M'ADOO

Underwood, Smith and Ralston To Insist On Insertion of Anti-Klan Plank in Platform.

Washington, May 14.—An informal but nevertheless close working agreement exists between the Underwood, Smith and Ralston forces in the Democratic presidential fight whereby they will make a common cause at New York in the insertion of an anti-Klan plank in the Democratic platform for 1924.

This was learned today from reliable political circles.

It is, in effect, a coalition against William G. McAdoo. The Klan issue has afforded the opponents of McAdoo a common ground on which they stand from the start of the convention.

By mutual consent, the fight to have the platform declare against the Klan will be started and pushed by the Underwood forces at New York.

At McAdoo headquarters here today it was stated that no reply would be made to charges that the Klan was packing delegates for McAdoo. Any reply, it was said, would have to come from Mr. McAdoo himself, or his active campaign managers.

MAY DELIVER VETO MESSAGE HIMSELF

COOLIDGE PLANS TO EXPLAIN HIS OBJECTIONS.

APPEALS FOR DELAY

Eleventh Hour Conference Regarding Japanese Exclusion Is Held at White House This Afternoon.

Washington, May 14. — President Coolidge plans to go before Congress in person to deliver his message vetoing the soldier bonus bill, according to reports at the capital this afternoon.

The President has until midnight Friday to act on the bill. It was said at the White House that Mr. Coolidge's plans on this matter were indefinite.

Washington, May 14.—A final eleventh hour attempt to compel Congress to back track its action on fixing July 1 as the effective date of Japanese exclusion, was made today by President Coolidge and Secretary Hughes.

The President summoned to the White House several leaders of the House for the general conference with Secretary Hughes and himself at which the international gravity of the pending exclusion was fully gone into by Hughes.

It was reported that the President and Secretary Hughes had submitted a new proposal to the House leaders.

A report was current this afternoon that Mr. Coolidge planned to deliver a special message to Congress in person asking that the exclusion provision be amended so as not to offend Japan. This could not be confirmed from any of those attending the White House conference, however.

County Exhibit May Be Sent to State Fair

Judge Bailey of County Court Thinks Proposition Can Be Put Over—1st Prize of $1,000 Offered.

"If the people of Nodaway County feel kindly towards the proposition and will help the county court in getting up an exhibit, Nodaway County may have a county exhibit at the State Fair this summer," was the opinion of Judge E. T. Bailey, presiding judge of the county court.

An announcement was received at the county clerk's office from the secretary of the Missouri State Fair, making an appeal to the county courts in the state to send a county exhibit to the State Fair August 16-23. The State Fair Board is offering $3,000 in prizes this year on county exhibits and the first premium will be $1,000 awarded.

Judge Bailey was of the opinion that Nodaway County has as good chances, i fnot better, than any county in the state to cop the prize, as Nodaway County leads in practically everything produced on farms in this state. He said that he would confer with the other two judges of the county court in regard to the matter and that the county court would like to hear from the citizens of the county in regard to sending a county exhibit to the fair.

The county exhibits consist of the resources and products of the counties of the state.

Under statute provisions made by the legislature in 1910 the law entitles counties to have exhibits. The county courts may appropriate funds at its discretion such sums as it sees fit for financing an exhibit and appoint a suitable person to accompany the exhibit to the fair.

HARVE ENGLAND.

Our 10th Great Anniversary Sale

Will Start Saturday Morning, May 17th at Nine o'Clock and Will End Saturday Night, May 24th, at Nine o'Clock.

TENTH TIME

Just ten years ago we opened this little store to the public and our fondest expectations have been surpassed. This is the Tenth Time which we have held this Great Sale event. There are hundreds of customers all over Northwest Missouri who wait from one year's end to another for this wonderful bargain giving event.

OUR ADVERTISEMENT

This year we will do our utmost to out-do any other Birthday Party that we have ever held. For particulars, read our double page advertisement in this paper tomorrow evening, in which we will try to give you a partial list of the real bargains offered. Every day since the establishment of this store, ten years ago, we have tried to do a little better than we did the day before.

OUR PURPOSE

The founder of this store had but one purpose in mind when he established the business and that was to be a real public benefactor; to supply you with honest merchandise at an honest price, with honest quality, service and dealing, and if any time that your purchase was not honest and did not give you entire satisfaction in every way the original price always has been and always will be promptly refunded.

OUR STORE

Our little store is not housed in the largest building, but within its walls is carried the most complete stock of dry goods and ready-to-wear in Northwest Missouri. It is our hobby to have what you want when you want it at the price you want to pay and it is often heard, "Well, if you can't find it at Haines, there isn't any use looking elsewhere." Every nook, hook and corner is filled with merchandise and is always kept in a perfect condition. Our space is so small that we are compelled to keep our stock neat and compact in order to show it in a convenient way. It would be an easy thing to spread this wonderful stock of merchandise into a space five or six times as large and have it look as many times as large but that would only add to the expense of doing business which would have to be passed on to the consumer.

NO TRASH AT ANY PRICE

We buy only first class reliable merchandise from the most reliable manuafcturers and guarantee every item we sell to be absolutely as represented. You can rest assured that for every dollar you spend in our store, you will get one hundred cents in value. For the past ten years we have enjoyed uninterrupted prosperity, there must be a reason for it.

OUR SALESPEOPLE

No matter how often you enter our store nor whether you want to buy or not, you will always find the sales-people with a smile and courteous treatment, they are well posted and are very alert in giving you prompt, efficient service. You will find that it is a pleasure to trade with them at all times.

OUR APPRECIATION

We are so well pleased and so grateful for the liberal patronage which the public has given us from year to year and in order to show this appreciation, we do business one week each year in the way of an Anniversary Sale without one cent of profit to ourselves. If you do not take advantage of this Tenth Great Anniversary Sale it is your loss, remember everything in our store is reduced in price during this Sale, without any exceptions.

Established on May 13, 1607, the first permanent English settlement in America brought about a new interest and a new belief in the Western Hemisphere—it was the forerunner of developments of vital importance to the New Land.

From those early days of the English in Virginia to the present is a stretch almost unbelievable in its record of American Progress.

But in the courage, the daring, the self-reliance, the belief in the future of those early settlers there is a lesson for everyone who is in the mood to learn things that aid in bringing success.

Ford Employe Gives Strong Endorsement

Karnak, the sensational new medicine discovered by M. Andre, noted French chemist, and recently introduced here, is winning friends by the hundreds throughout this vicinity by its remarkable health-building power. Mr. John West, well known employee of the Ford Motor Company, and residing at 6033 East Fifteenth Street, Kansas City, Mo., relates the following remarkable experience with the celebrated preparation.

"For the past three years I have been in mighty bad shape from indigestion and everything I ate felt like coals of fire in my stomach. I would suffer so from bloating and gas that I could hardly get my breath. Even crackers and soup disagreed with me, and during the whole time I don't think there was a single day that I felt well.

"Nothing I tried hit the spot until I got hold of Karnak, and I'll tell the world it has proved itself to be everything claimed for it. It made a clean sweep of my troubles and I am now in the pink of condition in every way. It is the greatest medicine I ever saw."

Karnak sets the stomach right, improves the appetite for wholesome, nourishing food, and through its action upon the organs of nutrition, elimination and purification, helps purify the blood and builds up the whole body in tone, vigor and vitality.

The True Story of Woodrow Wilson

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

CHAPTER XX.

Inside History of the Relations With Mexico, Great Britain and Japan During the First Wilson Administration

None of Woodrow Wilson's policies will be more difficult for the historian to understand than the complicated relations with Mexico. The author happened to have played a part in the course of events growing out of the Mexican situation as early as October 1910 when President Taft and Secretary Knox were dealing with these perplexing questions. It was during the Taft administration that the author, as a representative of the Associated Press, was privileged to win the confidence of both the Madero and Diaz factions and to assist in bringing about an armistice and subsequently at Juarez, Mexico, the signing of a treaty of peace whereby the Madero revolution was formally terminated and bloodshed avoided. The author was engaged in reporting the events of the Mexican revolution in 1912 when instructions were sent by the Associated Press to proceed to Governor Wilson's headquarters and begin a daily chronicle of Mr. Wilson's activities as a presidential candidate. While accompanying the president-elect one day from New York to Trenton, word came of the capture of President Madero and Vice-President Pino Suarez by Victoriano Huerta who made himself dictator in Mexico. Mr. Wilson told the newspaper men with him that he did not believe any harm would befall either Madero or Suarez. He was deeply shocked therefore when he heard of the brutal murders which followed.

Secretary Knox of the State Department, accustomed as he was to the habits of the countries below the Rio Grande, was not inclined to make an issue of the murder and refuse recognition because as a practical thing the United States Government had in the past extended recognition wherever a government seemed to be in military control of the situation. Inquiry was never made too closely into the virtues of any particular individual group of individuals in a Latin American government. The Taft-Knox administration was ready to recognize the Huerta regime but asked for a settlement of the troublesome boundary dispute in the Chamizal zone. The Huerta administration mistakenly believing that better terms could be secured from the Wilson administration procrastinated and the 4th of March 1913 arrived with no recognition extended.

Secretary Knox instructed Huntington Wilson, Assistant Secretary of State, to get in touch with Mr. Wilson before the inauguration and advise him of the status of Mexican affairs. The President-elect was suspicious and did not act according to advices given him. Nor did he accept in later weeks the counsel of Henry Lane Wilson, the Ambassador at Mexico City, largely because he believed Ambassador Wilson had played too intimate a part in Mexican affairs and was himself a party to too many unofficial and informal compromises with the Huerta administration. When Ambassador Wilson returned to the United States and Nelson O'Shaughnessy was left in charge of the American Embassy in Mexico City the same distrust of O'Shaughnessy was apparent although the reasons for it were not the same. Mr. O'Shaughnessy was on intimate terms with Huerta and President Wilson believed that O'Shaughnessy did not press with proper vigor and emphasis the notes being sent to the Huerta administration.

Although President Wilson was stubbornly insistent that "Huerta must go," he was never anxious to precipitate a controversy with Mexico involving the use of physical force.

The dispatch of former Governor Lind of Minnesota to Mexico as an unofficial envoy rather than commissioner was decided upon as a means of getting impartial reports on the situation in Mexico. Governor Lind had had no experience in the diplomatic world or in Latin America, but his reports impressed both President Wilson and Secretary Bryan as lucid and accurate. Mr. Wilson had the idea however, that the Mexican policy on which he was embarked would have an influence upon other parts of Central and South America. The arbitrary usurpation of power and especially the overthrow of governments by physical force had unsettled Latin America for generations. President Wilson became convinced of the necessity of taking such a stand in order that something might be done toward stabilizing the governmental situations in Latin America. Confirmation of this view was publicly given when Mr. Wilson made his famous speech at Mobile early in 1914, declaring that the United States did not wish to add another foot of territory in the Western Hemisphere by conquest and that the American government frowned upon efforts by any American citizens to exploit concessions of peoples to the south of us. He denounced concessionaires who interfered with the processes of orderly government and who intrigued to overthrow one administration in Latin America so that it might be succeeded by another more favorable to these privileged interests.

Unfortunately for Mr. Wilson his own Department of State did not consistently follow the outline of policy he made at the start of his administration with respect to the recognition of governments which obtained their power by the arbitrary overthrow of the preceding administration. The kidnapping of the President of Peru and the succession of its Vice-President was followed by recognition extended in the usual way by the Wilson administration and there are other cases in Central America in which the United States found that expediency required the recognition of the existing regime giving it moral support rather than the encouragement of a period of chaos.

Theoretically Mr. Wilson's policy of insisting upon the orderly processes of government and free elections to prevent disturbance was excellent and there is no question that Mr. Wilson contributed a great deal toward the formulation of a policy which some day may be more literally followed than it was in his administration but the fight made against Huerta did not lead to the kind of impression Mr. Wilson wanted to make in Latin America. On the contrary it gave the agitators in Central and South America an opportunity to insist that the United States was trying to interfere in the internal affairs of sovereign countries and that one step of interference would be followed by another until the "Colossus of the North" gobbled up its weaker neighbors.

As an interesting corroboration, however, of Mr. Wilson's ambitions with respect to Latin American policy, the Department of State under the Republican administration of Secretary Charles Evans Hughes, brought about the signing of a series of treaties between five Central American countries whereby it was mutually agreed that recognition would not be extended to any government which owed its origin to the use of physical force, or the intrigue of ambitious politicians at the head of revolutionary armies.

President Wilson had little idea that his Mexican policy would lead to serious complications with European interests to recognize the Huerta regime and secure a settlement of the debts owed by Mexico to foreign bond holders.

In curious fashion indeed did the Mexican policy become interwoven with the diplomatic relations which developed between the United States and Japan on the one hand over the alien legislation of the State of California and the desire of the British government to obtain a repeal of the law passed by the same Congress exempting American vessels from the payment of canal tolls and thus discriminating against British and other foreign vessels.

Mr. Wilson had many tempestuous conflicts with the British foreign office over the apparent support given to the Huerta regime by the British government, a support intensified to no small extent, by the large oil interests of British companies whose influence in the British foreign office was appreciable.

Mr. Wilson felt of course that the Hay-Pauncefote Treaty guaranteed Great Britain against discrimination and he was ready to ask Congress for the repeal of the Panama Canal Tolls Act but in doing so he saw the wisdom of obtaining a reciprocal pledge from Great Britain whereby the London foreign office would exercise its great influence with the Japanese in bringing about a peaceful solution of the Japanese American controversy.

Great Britain by virtue of the Anglo-Japanese Alliance was in a position to hold Japan at bay in the event of an exeresecence of war spirit. It had never been unequivocally established whether in the event of war between Japan and the United States, Great Britain would be obliged to assist Japan or could remain neutral. In any event, the British were in a position to persuade the Japanese not to make a serious issue of the California question. That is what Mr. Wilson meant when he used the much discussed of phrase "Matters of far reaching and delicate concern" in his message to Congress asking for ungrudging support for his foreign policy in doing for Great Britain that which would make amends for an apparent violation of the Hay-Pauncefote Treaty.

After the Panama Act was repealed and Mr. Wilson had done what he thought would please the British foreign office he was very much surprised to discover that the British were indirectly supporting the Huerta regime in Mexico. Walter Hines Page, American Ambassador to Great Britain, had many a stormy conference with Sir Edward Grey, the British Foreign Minister, all of which led to an expression from the British government of a willingness to permit the United States to have a free hand in dealing with the Mexican government. Mr. Wilson in those days was convinced that the Heurta regime would have toppled much sooner if it had not been for the British help.

As for the controversy with Japan, only those in the inner circle knew how serious the crisis really became. The United States and Japan were much nearer war in those days than anybody dreamed. Mr. Wilson hated war and yet was powerless it seemed to remove from the Japanese mind the impression which had become fixed there, namely, that the United States must cease discriminating against Japanese nationals and that pride required a show of might.

There were midnight conferences with the Secretary of War, Mr. Garrison, and the Secretary of Navy, Mr. Daniels in attendance. American naval vessels were secretly ordered to proceed to points of best advantage in protecting American interests in the Far East. The American troops stood under arms at Corregidor the fortress at the Philippines. The Japanese fleet was not unmindful of what was happening.

Mr. Wilson saw the danger of a single slip—a collision of forces or some act like the blowing up of the Maine which might precipitate war. Suddenly instructions were issued to all American naval vessels to suspend all movements while the diplomats struggled again with a formula by which it was hoped to maintain peace.

Some day when the diplomatic correspondence of that period is made public, it will reveal the worrisome hours spent by the President almost from the beginning of his administration in battling with foreign questions which in the end proved his physical undoing.

Engineer to Inspect North State Highway

Contract For Surfacing North Main Street Road Will Be Delayed, Pending Report.

Following the hearing yesterday of the delegation from Maryville in regard to changing the state road to north of the Burlington station, and making Prather avenue road as the other highway, a dispatch from Jefferson City says that the State Highway Commission directed another engineer to be sent to the project and make a report.

The following Maryville men went before the Commission regarding the changing of the road: Ernest Wray, Lon Hughes, J. F. Dowden, Lawrence Frazee and John Murphy.

The highway originally selected was the one north on Main street to the three mile corner, then a mile west to the Rogers corner, and also a mile east to the Union school house corner. The contract for this road was to have been let this month but now it will be put off until a report is made to the commission about the two roads.

When the engineer is sent here, these men who are wanting the two roads will meet him and accompany him on his trip of inspection over these roads. Recently these parties took a survey of the three roads—the road from Rogers corner and then to Maryville over Prather avenue; the road north on Main street; and the road north from the Burlington station. The number of cars, trucks and teams were counted during a certain period and it showed that there were over 500 more cars, trucks and teams over the two roads than the one on North Main street.

Faust Will Have No Opponent in Primary

McDaniel Files as Democratic Candidate—Large Field to Enter Race in State This Year.

Jefferson City, May 14.—That there will be a large field of candidates for Congress is indicated by the early filing of declarations with Charles U. Becker, secretary of state.

Seven Republicans and eight Democrats have filed and it is certain that all of the present sixteen Representatives in Congress from Missouri will be candidates to succeed themselves.

Several former Representatives will also be in the race before the final entries close June 6. Charles L. Faust of St. Joseph, present Representative from the fourth district, will not have opposition for the Republican nomination.

John McDaniel of Savannah, a candidate for the Democratic nomination in 1922, has filed as a candidate for the nomination this year.

Nodaway Cattle Top 2 Markets on Monday

Nodaway steers and heifers of the Hereford breed topped two Middle-West livestock markets in their class on Monday of this week. J. H. Gray with a load of baby beef heifers weighing 675 pounds, received the highest price in their class, on the Chicago market, bringing Mr. Gray $9.75.

Jackson and Schooler with two loads of steers and heifers topped the Kansas City livestock market on the same day. Their steers and heifers weighed 787 pounds and brought $10. Just a year ago today Joe Jackson topped Kansas City market with the same kind of cattle.

A. R. Martin also sent in two loads of heifers to Chicago market, weighing 680 pounds that brought him $9.50 on Monday.

Mr. Gray said that his heifers were bought from the livestock exchange at Des Moines, Ia., and in 180 days doubled their weight. Mr. Jackson bought his cattle from the St. Joseph Livestock Exchange. Mr. Gray said this is the first time he has topped the Chicago market and made him feel pretty good.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Combs and family are entertaining the latter's brother and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Power of Darlington, who were recently married.

Drink Water to Help Wash Out Kidney Poison

If Your Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers You, Begin Taking Salts

When your kidneys hurt and your back feels sore don't get scared and proceed to load your stomach with a lot of drugs that excite the kidneys and irritate the entire urinary tract. Keep your kidneys clean like you keep your bowels clean, by flushing them with a mild, harmless salts which helps to remove the body's urinous waste and stimulates them to their normal activity. The function of the kidneys is to filter the blood. In 24 hours they strain from it 500 grains of acid and waste, so we can readily understand the vital importance of keeping the kidneys active.

Drink lots of good water—you can't drink too much; also get from any pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help clean and stimulate clogged kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in the system so they are no longer a source of irritation, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; can not injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink, which everyone should take now and then to help keep their kidneys clean and active. Try this; also keep up the water drinking, and no doubt you will wonder what became of your kidney trouble and backache. By all means have your physician examine your kidneys at least twice a year.

ORCHARDISTS NOW SPRAYING TREES

"ALL FARM HOMES SHOULD HAVE FRUIT TREES"—KINNAIRD

ADVISES ON VARIETIES

That Should Be Set Out In Nodaway County—$25 Will Buy Small Spraying Outfit.

"Every farm home can very profitably have an orchard," commented R. A. Kinnaird, county agent this morning, who has been putting in solid time for the last three days assisting orchardists spraying their trees. "For an average home orchards of ane-acre including forty to fifty trees, two men can easily spray it in one-half day with a small barrel outfit costing $25," Mr. Kinnaird said, "and that the material to make the solution for spraying would not cost more than $10, allowing for a full schedule of four applications and assuming that the trees are of large size."

Mr. Kinnaird said that in his trips over the county he has noted many orchards that have died and it was his opinion they could be built up without much effort. However, he said he has also noted many young orchards in the county that are well taken care of and he has seen many where the trees were well shaped for good frame work when young, and will in time become thrifty. He was of the opinion that the owners of these orchards who have taken pains to set out a well planned orchard would undoubtedly take care of their trees when they start to bear and was sure that they would be sprayed to insure the existence of the trees and good fruit.

Mr. Kinnaird assisted Roy Lippman in applying an application of spraying solution to Mr. Lippman's trees last Saturday. Mr. Kinnaird said that some of these men are just applying the first application of the spraying solution and there are others who are a little ahead and using the second application. Also on Saturday Mr. Kinnaird went to the farms of C. D. Bellows, and J. L. Teson, the latter living near Skidmore, where he gave his personal assistance to these farmers in the process of applying spraying solution.

On Monday the county agent assisted Charles Stafford of near Pickering and yesterday he was at the Lester Lyle home, located near the Martha Washington school, which is south of Maryville.

Mr. Kinnaird recommended several varieties of trees, which he said he would advise the farmers in this part of the state to plant if they were intending to start an orchard. However, he thought it a little late in the spring to set out any trees. The varieties of trees that Mr. Kinnaird recommended are:

Apples best suited for Nodaway County that turn ripe early in the season—Early Harvest, Yellow Transparent, Liveland Raspberry, The Chenango or Strawberry Apple, Dutchess and Maidens's Blush.

For fall apples Mr. Kinnaird recommended the following: Wealthy, Jonathan, Delicious, York Imperial and Rambo.

For late fall apples, those that keep well, he suggested Grimes Golden, Genthen, Winesap, Missouri Pippin, Gano, King David, Stamen Winesap, Rome Beauty and Minkler.

Former Resident Dies in Denver Last Friday

Edward H. Hurlbut Succumbs Following Operation Two Weeks Before—Son of Pioneer.

Maryville friends have received word of the death of Edward H. Hurlbut of Denver, Colo., which occurred Friday morning, May 9, following an operation two weeks before. Mr. Hurlbut was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. E. K. Hurlbut, former residents of Maryville, and removed to Denver with his parents in 1890. Mr. Hurlbut Sr., was a pioneer dry goods merchant of Maryville. The following account is clipped from the Denver Post:

Edwin H. Hurlbut, prominent early-day grocer of Denver, and one of the most widely known sportsmen and clubmen in the west, died suddenly early Friday morning of a hemorhage in St. Joseph's hospital, where he had undergone serious operations for appendicitis and gall stones ten days ago.

Hurlbut's death came just when his friends believed he had almost recovered from his operations, and less than a month after the death of his mother, Mrs. Helen Hurlbut, who died at his home, 1439 Detroit street, April 13, at the age of 82 years.

It is believed that a rupture of a bloodvessel in the region of the recent operations precipitated the hemorrhage, and resulted in Hurlbut's death.

"Ned" Hurlbut, as he was familiarly known by his hundreds of friends, was one of the most enthusiastic sportsmen in Colorado. He was a great lover of hunting, fishing and golf.

For many years he was a member of the famous Bear River Duck club in Utah. He was also a member of the Denver Country club. Only a few days ago he was planning a fishing trip to the Gulf of Mexico with his brother-in-law, William H. Murphy, manager of the credit department of the Public Service company of Colorado.

Born at Quincy, Ill., July 30, 1868, "Ned" Hurlbut would have been 56 years old next July. He came to Denver with his parents in 1890, and with his father, the late E. K. Hurlbut, and his oldest brother, the late Richard Hurlbut, he became associated in the widely known Hurlbut grocery company on Larimer street in the early nineties.

After the death of his brother twenty years ago and the death of his father seventeen years ago, "Ned" became the sole owner of the Hurlbut stores.

In more recent years the main Hurlbut store had been located in the Evans block, adjoining the central Tramway loop. Branch stores had been established in various sections of the city where "Ned" undertook the creation of a chain of Hurlbut stores.

However, four or five years ago, he retired from the grocery store business after selling his extensive interests to the John Thompson Grocery Co.

Since then he had been interested in the Credit Finance corporation, and only recently had become secretary of the Cork Seal Piston Ring company.

Thursday night he was in the best of spirits. He laughed and joked with his relatives and friends at the hospital and enthusiastically planned a big fishing trip along the gulf this spring. About 11 o'clock Thursday night the hemorrhage began, and he died, with his wife and friends about him, at 2 o'clock Friday morning.

Hurlbut had been a Mason for several years, a member of the Oriental lodge No. 87.

The only immediate relative surviving him is his widow, Mrs. Minnie Warren Hurlbet.

Funeral services will be held at 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon from the Horan funeral chapel and burial will be in the family plot at Fairmount cemetery. It is expected the Masonic lodge will have charge of the services.

Clean-Up Squad Starts Its Work Early Thursday Morning -----

EVERYBODY SHOULD HELP IN THIS CLEAN-UP CAMPAIGN. The investment is small and the returns great. It means a more beautiful city, more healthful and also prevents fires, so let's all get together and make Maryville a spotless City.

EARLY THURSDAY MORNING THE CITY OF MARYVILLE will have a squad of men with teams and trucks who will gather up all the rubbish and haul it away free. The only thing you have to do, is to place all rubbish in bags, barrels or boxes and place them in the parkway (old tree trunks must be hauled away at your expense).

THERE IS A SPIRIT OF CIVIC PRIDE IN THIS CAMPAIGN and this co-operative effort will accomplish that which would be impossible for the individual but those who don't enter into the spirit and clean up during the campaign will be required to do so later at their own expense. People who own vacant lots should see that all the rubbish is gathered up and placed in the parkway so the City force may haul it away.

School Levy Same for Coming Year

At a meeting of teh school board held last evening, the levy for the coming year was made. It will be the same as the last year, 85 cents on the $100 valuation for school purposes and 15 cents on the $100 assessed valuation for bond sinking andinterest fund. The board could have made the levy $1, the voters having voted for a levy of 60 cents in addition to the 40 cents authorized by law, but felt that an 85 cents levy would produce enough revenue to run the schools the coming year.
